

THIRD WORLD RESURGENCE the Third World's own magazine

In today's rapidly changing world, and one often dominated by the western media, Third World Resurgence offers a much-needed alternative view from the perspective of the Third World.

It is produced by a team of journalists and writers who, with equal measures of passion and professionalism, strive to provide a greater articulation of the needs and rights of peoples in the South.

Published by the Third World Network, the magazine covers and provides a critique and analysis on a whole range of issues such as the environment, health and basic needs, international affairs, politics, economics, technology, culture, etc.

This resurging voice of the South invites you to be in solidarity with the Third World – subscribe now and extend this unique invitation to your friends.

• “The most courageous ‘distant voices’ are in the Third World, and ... (they) produce literature and journalism that have no equivalent in the developed world (like the analyses in Third World Resurgence, published in Malaysia) ...” – John Pilger, in the introduction to his book, Distant Voices.
