A Special Appeal

For more than half a century, the Economic & Political Weekly (EPW) has been a major presence in India's intellectual space. It has been a crucible for ideas and a forum for debate, which has created a journal of international repute that has become a virtual institution. EPW provides a multidisciplinary platform for academics and practitioners, researchers and students, as well as concerned citizens, for critical engagement with economy, polity and society in contemporary India.

It has always been a struggle to ensure EPW's financial viability and sustainability. The resource constraint has been exacerbated by our conscious decision to abstain from receiving grants from governments and donations from abroad, to preserve the autonomy and independence of the journal.

With the COVID-19 pandemic and the consequent nationwide lockdown, EPW is now experiencing an unexpected and drastic drop in revenue from retail sales (as there has been no print edition for three months) and advertisement income (as advertising has contracted sharply with the crisis in the economy), resulting in an acute financial crisis. This is not unique for EPW alone. However, while other print media organisations have resorted to closures, large-scale retrenchment of staff, and salary cuts, it has been our endeavour not to undertake such drastic measures in EPW. In the first two months of the lockdown, full salaries were paid to all EPW staff. The Editor and his team adopted drastic austerity measures and cut expenditure to the bone. In spite of this, there was a large operational deficit every month, which could aggravate further if the problems associated with and following the lockdown, persist. If this excess of expenditure over income goes unchecked, a stage would come when we would no longer be able to keep EPW alive.

The situation became so critical in the month of June that there was no other choice but to implement a temporary measure of reducing staff salaries. This is being done for the months of June and July 2020 in a graduated progressive manner ranging from 0% to 40%. The situation, however, continues to remain extremely uncertain. The financial situation of EPW will be reviewed again in August 2020.

In these difficult and troubled times, an institution of EPW's stature and credibility is needed more than ever before. Well-wishers of EPW have been reaching out and urging us to do whatever necessary to ensure EPW's sustainability.

We therefore appeal to the community of readers, contributors, subscribers and well-wishers of EPW to come forward and make donations to the extent each one can, so as to ensure that EPW continues to perform its historic role. This is urgent. And it is of utmost importance. We hope you will join us in supporting EPW.

BOOKS ON ECONOMIC HISTORY*TRADE AND TRADERS IN EARLY INDIAN SOCIETY
(Third Revised and Enlarged Edition)

RANABIR CHAKRAVARTI

Highlighting diverse types of market places and merchants, this book situates the commercial scenario of early India in the overall agrarian material milieu of the sub continent. The book questions the stereotypical narrative of early Indian trade as exchanges in small quality, exotic portable luxury items and strongly argues for the significance of the trade in relatively inexpensive bulk commodities – including agrarian/floral products – at the local and regional levels and also in long distance trade. A major feature of this work is the conspicuous thrust on and attention to the sea-borne commerce in the sub-continent. This edition discusses the emerging historiographical issues in the history of trade in early India.

Ranabir Chakravarti, an eminent expert in the social and economic history of early India and Indian Ocean maritime trade during the pre-modern times.

TILOTTAMA MUKHERJEE

This collection of articles on varied facets of early modern Bengal, explores the trading networks, religious traditions, artistic and literary patronage and politico-cultural practices. Early modern Bengal's history tends to get overshadowed by the later developments of the nineteenth century. What this assortment of articles highlights is that this period needs to be studied afresh, and in depth. Using a wide array of sources, the contributors to this volume have attempted to address various historiographical 'black holes' bringing in new material and interpretations.

REVENUE SYSTEM IN POST-MAURYA AND GUPTA TIMES

DWIJENDRA NARAYAN JHA

This is arguably the first systematic study of the revenue system in Post-Maurya and Gupta times. The author shows that some new principles of taxation were enunciated during the period.

It also discusses the earliest epigraphic evidence regarding fiscal concessions granted to priests and temples. While explaining various taxes mentioned in the land charters, the volume shows that fines and forced labour constituted important sources of revenue. Adequate attention has also been paid to the nature of emergency taxation and the machinery of revenue administration.

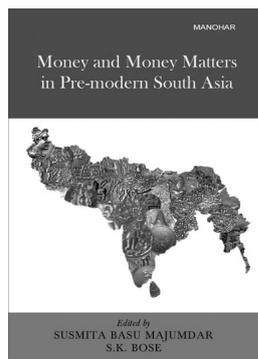

This reprint of the 1967 original edition carries a substantial Foreword and an Afterword by Vishwa Mohan Jha.

Dwijendra Narayan Jha was Professor of History, University of Delhi.
